
IPB - LICENCE AGREEMENT

When subscribing to the International Philosophical Bibliography (referred as “IPB”) and its content (referred as “Material”) and accessing the website using this address: <https://ipb.uclouvain.be>, the subscriber is deemed to have read and accepted the terms of use and legal notice set out below.

TERMS OF USE

1. Subscriptions

IPB website is accessible for all users (referred as “Authorised Users”) who subscribed to IPB via an institutional or an individual subscription. To qualify as an “Authorised User” of the Material, a user must have a valid access paid by the user or an institution, and have registered on IPB website.

2. Access and authentication

IPB permits authorised entry by authentication via SAML2 standard, via the Edugain federation or by recognizing the authorised IP addresses, provided by the subscribing institution at the time the order is placed. The subscribing institution affirms that all IP addresses provided for use of the database are controlled by its institution exclusively for Internet access by Authorised Users. Valid IP addresses must not include those of publicly accessible proxy or cache servers. Access is not available through independent service providers. Distance learners and alumni who access the Internet via campus IP accounts or a secure proxy server may use IPB’s website.

IPB will restore access to the Material as soon as possible in the event of an interruption or suspension of service.

The subscribing institution will make reasonable efforts to create and maintain appropriate security measures to ensure that only Authorised Users can access Material online.

3. Rights and responsibilities of Authorised Users

A subscription to the Material on this website grants an unlimited number of simultaneous users’ access to the complete content of the database for educational, research, and personal use by the faculty, staff, students, alumni, library patrons, and other Authorised Users of the subscriber’s campus/institutional network. Distance learners, alumni, and other off-campus affiliates may access the database on this website if their Internet access is through the campus network or via a secure proxy server.

The subscribing institution is expected to make their best feasible efforts to enable access to the Material only to faculty, students, staff, alumni, and walk-in library patrons using the campus's physical library facilities.

4. Unauthorised uses

Authorised Users are not permitted to

- engage in systematic copying or downloading of the Material or transmit any part of the Material by any means to any unauthorised user;
- allow copies to be stored or accessed by an unauthorised user;
- make the Material available in any other form or medium or create derivative works without the written permission of the editors;
- make any commercial use of any content on this site without the written permission of the editors;
- alter, amend, modify or change the Materials;
- reverse engineer, decompile, disassemble or otherwise alter software.

IPB Editors reserves the right to withdraw the subscriber's access to the Material in the event of systematic breach of these conditions by any Authorised User.

To ensure continuity of service, any changes by the subscribing institution to this information during the subscription period to the Material must be communicated to IPB.

One month before the subscription expires, IPB will inform the individual subscriber, the subscribing institution, or the external agent responsible for renewal, and redirect them to the payment site (i6doc).
